GRANTS AND EXPENDITURES

Payments made to those grantees listed in this attachment over which the Foundation exercises expenditure responsibility are separately listed in Statement #12.A. All other grantee organizations listed in this attachment are, to the best of our knowledge, organizations described in IRC 509(a)(1), (2), or (3).

This attachment includes grants made directly to individuals. These grantees are also separately listed in Statement #12.B. In addition, payments for general fellowships are itemized in Statement #12.C. To the best of our knowledge, no person who was a recipient of an individual award from the Foundation was related by blood, marriage, or adoption, or is employed by any person having an interest in The Rockefeller Foundation, such as a creator, donor, trustee, or officer.

EXPENDITURE RESPONSIBILITY GRANTS AND PRIs

Prospective grantees are asked to furnish information in order to enable the Foundation to determine whether they have received a determination of 501(c)(3) status from the U.S. Internal Revenue Ser vice or may be considered the equivalent of a tax-exempt charity if formed outside the United States. Prospective grantees with respect to whom the Foundation is believed to have "expenditure responsibility" obligations are informed by letter, before payment is made on a grant, of the responsibilities imposed upon the Foundation and its grantees by the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended. Each grantee must agree in writing to those terms and conditions, including the obligation to provide financial and substantive reports on how Foundation grant funds are expended. The reports that are received are reviewed for general accuracy sufficiency and compliance with the terms and conditions of the grant. Additional information is requested from grantees in instances where reports are considered inadequate. Where the Foundation has not received financial or substantive reports from a grantee when expected, Foundation staff follow up in several ways, including reminders that are sent at regular intervals after reports are expected and personal follow-up by program staff through telephone, mail and e-mail.

The following schedules list grant and program-related investment expenditures with respect to which the Foundation has exercised expenditure responsibility Grantee organizations marked "*" are either private foundations, private operating foundations, or foreign private-foundation equivalents. All other grantees are non 501(c)(3) organizations or organizations for which the Foundation has not made a reasonable determination of 501(c)(3) equivalency status that received grants for charitable projects and maintained payments in segregated funds as required by Treasury Reg. 53 4945-6(c).

The dates of the reports shown on the following schedules are annotated with an "F" and/or an "N" to indicate that the reports are financial reports or narrative reports, respectively Unless otherwise noted, the reports received were found to be in order and to show that the funds were fully expended for the purpose of the grant.

Where the grantee has satisfactorily reported full expenditure of the funds, the "reporting status" for the expenditure is marked "complete." For all other expenditures, we will provide follow-up infor mation in our 2005 990-PF

Reporting status is as of 11/10/2005

Schedule 1	Grant expenditures: (1) all 2004 grant expenditures, and (2) grant expenditures from 1999 through 2003 for which we were not able to report that reporting was complete when we filed our 2003 990-PF

SUMMARY OF FOUR LARGEST DIRECT CHARITABLE ACTIVITIES

Bellagio Study and Conference Center - $4,271,044
The Center had operating expenses of $3,650,331 in 2004. Since 1959, the Center has served as a resource for fostering dialogue and problem solving for diverse participants around the world. The Center hosts conferences that focus on topics of international importance, with preference given to applications that promote development and align with the Foundation's program areas. In 2004, the Center hosted 56 conferences and team meetings with a total of 1,071 participants; 64 percent of the participants were from outside the United States and 32 percent were from developing countries. In addition, the Center offers month-long residencies to scholars, writers, artists, and composers. In 2004, the Center hosted 147 individual residents, 43 percent of whom were from outside the U.S. and 22 percent from developing countries. A listing of 2004 conferences, teams and individual residents is attached.

In addition to the Center's operating expenses, the following expenses were incurred in furtherance of the programs:

> The Bellagio Center Office in New York (including the Bellagio Committee) had operating expenses of $620,713 in 2004. This Office is responsible for soliciting proposals and managing their review and disposition; assessment of needs of the program as a whole; drafting policy for consideration by the Bellagio Committee; working with users to maximize their use of the Center in flexible and innovative ways; and regular communication and information exchange with the Bellagio Center, Italy.

Human Resources for Health - $881,858

Weak health systems in developing countries are overburdened by HIV/AIDS, malaria, tuberculosis and other diseases of poverty and though new sources of funding to combat these diseases have recently been made available, using these new resources effectively is hampered by constraints in the health workforce. This problem arises because of the chronic underinvestment in human resources, large numbers of health workers killed by AIDS in those countries where the disease is endemic, and the brain drain of nurses and doctors from countries that can least afford the loss of their services. In response, The Rockefeller Foundation, in partnership with the World Bank, the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency, Harvard University, the Atlantic Philanthropies, the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation and other donor groups launched the Joint Learning Initiative in 2002. This initiative engaged more than 100 global health leaders in landscaping human resources for health and in identifying strategies to strengthen the global health workforce. A report documenting this effort and providing recommendations for addressing the problem was published by Harvard University Press in entitled, "Human Resources for Health: Overcoming the Crisis."

SUMMARY OF FOUR LARGEST DIRECT CHARITABLE ACTIVITIES

The Philanthropy Workshop (TPW) - $837,666
The mission of The Philanthropy Workshop (TPW), an operating program of the Foundation, is to create an active, global association of strategic philanthropists with the skills, commitment and imagination to make a significant contribution to pressing issues of our time. TPW consists of four modules, offered over the course of a year, that provide opportunities for leadership development, lifelong learning and collaborative problem solving. Each module explores critical elements of international and strategic philanthropy through a variety of methods, including site visits, case studies, seminars, discussions, colloquia and retreats. In 2004, modules were conducted in New York ("Developing a Framework for Strategic Philanthropy"), Berlin, Germany ("Exploring Issues and Building Skills"), Uganda ("Global Philanthropy: Working Across Borders") and Washington, DC (Putting Strategic Philanthropy into Action"). TPW also brings together alumni of the program for ongoing learning, international site visit modules to the developing world, and collaborative grantmaking.

The Legacy of Brown versus the Board of Education of Topeka, Kansas - $506,632

In 2004, the 50th anniversary of the landmark U.S. Supreme Court decision Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka, Kansas provided the Rockefeller Foundation with an opportunity to energize a national dialogue and generate lessons on the nation's progress on racial integration and its 50-year effort to integrate the nation's schools. The Foundation's approach had several prongs: (1) preparation, production and dissemination of an essay on the effect that the Brown decision had (and will continue to have) on American education, while also addressing the broader social, political and cultural trends related to integration and its role in America society; (2) market research, communications and media outreach including tracking and analysis of coverage in connection with the Brown anniversary; (3) survey of U.S. organizations planning events, conferences and publications focused on the Brown anniversary; and (4) organize meetings and other fora to ensure a national dialogue.

In addition, the Rockefeller Foundation made grants totaling approximately $1.4 million in 2004 for Brown-related activities. The institutions that received funding were the NAACP Legal Defense Fund; Howard University School of Law; the Graduate Center, City University of New York; the Metropolitan Center for Urban Education, New York University; CEJJES Institute and Library, Editorial Projects in Education and Firelight Media. Activities supported included a

(b) No special form is required in making a request for funding from the Foundation. An letter of inquiry should include:

- a brief description of the project, with clearly stated plans and objectives;
- a plan for the total funding of the project during, and where applicable after, the proposed grant period;
- a listing of the applicant's qualifications and accomplishments.

(c) Letters of inquiry may be submitted at any time.

(d) The Foundation operates within the following program themes: Creativity & Culture, Food Security, Health Equity and Working Communities. A cross-theme of Global Inclusion supports, promotes and supplements the work of these themes. In addition, the Foundation supports a number of regional and special programs, including the Africa Regional Program, the Southeast Asia Regional Program, and the North America Regional Program.

OVERVIEW

The Rockefeller Foundation is a knowledge-based, global foundation with a commitment to enrich and sustain the lives and livelihoods of poor and excluded people throughout the world.

In order to maximize its resources and leverage the Foundation's strengths, grantmaking is organized around four thematic lines of work: Creativity & Culture, Food Security, Health Equity and Working Communities. A cross-theme of Global Inclusion supports, promotes and supplements the work of these themes.

In addition, the Foundation supports a number of regional and special programs, among them the Africa Regional Program and the Southeast Asia Regional Program. We also offer a unique place for study and creative endeavor through our Bellagio Study and Conference Center in northern Italy.

The challenges confronting poor and excluded people are too numerous, complex and massive to be addressed by any single foundation alone. We must continue to emphasize the creation and support of global partnerships, alliances and collaboratives to effect positive change in the daily lives of poor people. The Foundation will continue to join forces with governments, industry, other foundations, and nongovernmental organizations to ensure that poor people are included in decisions that affect their lives.

Following are more specifics on the Foundation's programs.

Contacting the Foundation about grants

The Rockefeller Foundation works to enrich and sustain the lives and livelihoods of poor and excluded people throughout the world.

The Foundation is a proactive grantmaker—that is, the staff seek out opportunities that will advance the Foundation's long-term goals rather than responding to unsolicited proposals. Foundation staff receive more than 8,000 unsolicited proposals each year, more than 75 percent of which cannot be considered because their purposes fall outside the Foundation's program guidelines.

The Foundation strongly discourages unsolicited grant proposals. We do not use an application form or standard format for proposals. Organizations seeking funding should carefully review the Foundation's grantmaking guidelines shown below (or visit the Foundation's Web site at www.rockfound.org) to determine if their project aligns with the Foundation's strategic interests. A short letter of inquiry can be addressed to the director of the subject area of interest, Rockefeller Foundation, 420 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10018. Inquiries can also be sent electronically to the e-mail addresses listed after each description below.

Letters of inquiry should briefly describe the purpose of the project for which funds are being requested; the issues the proposed project will address; information about the organization; estimated budget and period for which funds are being requested; and qualifications of key personnel involved in the project.

Letters of inquiry will be considered as they are received throughout the year. Inquiries take from six to eight weeks for review. Organizations submitting inquiries that align with the interests of the Foundation may be asked to submit a proposal.

As a matter of policy, the Foundation does not give or lend money for personal aid to individuals or, except in rare cases, provide general institutional support, fund endowments, or contribute to building and operating funds.

ABOUT THE PROGRAMS

THEMES

Creativity & Culture

Goal: To give full expression to the creative impulses of individuals and communities in order to enhance the well-being of societies and better equip them to interact in a globalized world.

Culture and artistic expression serve as both barometers of the quality of people's lives and livelihoods, and as agents for improving them. Cultural workers—ranging from humanities scholars to traditional African griots and artists—serve as catalysts for comprehending and addressing the needs and aspirations of individuals and communities. Their role and the roles of their institutions are essential to preserving community traditions and memories, and to provide critical commentary about a rapidly changing world. Cultural workers and artists are vital to community resiliency as they help people withstand and respond to the stresses of poverty, migration, violence and discrimination.

Globalization, flowing on the currents of new technologies, can place creativity at risk as well as offer new avenues for expression. Technology can capture and provide new energy to threatened traditions by offering renewed strength to communities, and also give life to altogether new, borderless "imagined communities" that unite people through shared experiences. At the same time, globalization can lead to the homogenization of cultures and may undermine cultural diversity.

As it has throughout most of its history, the Rockefeller Foundation bases its support for the arts and humanities on the conviction that societies are enriched by the free expression of creative individuals. So as to address today's challenges of globalization, the Foundation aims to enhance the creativity of individuals and communities through the preservation and renewal of the cultural heritage of poor and excluded people, the engagement of artists and humanists in the creation of democratic and inclusive societies, and the support of diverse creative expression and experiments with the new digital technologies.

FUNDING GUIDELINES

Creativity & Culture's grantmaking falls into several areas:

Understanding Cultural Contexts and Frameworks: Initiatives that seek to measure the role culture plays in building community, promote greater fairness in the ownership and control of knowledge and build channels from communities to established institutions and scholarly and policymaking bodies.

Linking Theory to Practice: Initiatives to transform and strengthen institutions by leveraging the cultural, creative and intellectual assets of people commonly marginalized by social and globalizing processes.

Support for Artists: Initiatives to support diverse creative expression in the arts and humanities by fostering the work of creative artists in the performing arts whose work reflects the boldest explorations in intercultural and/or international representation.

Support is provided to preserve and strengthen threatened traditional art forms in Southeast Asia; to help communities recover and interpret cultural materials, such as literary or religious texts and oral histories; and to examine the role that memory, history and imagination play in helping communities withstand and adapt to the stresses of poverty, exclusion and violence.

The theme has also funded an exploration to create environments that encourage new media collaborations between the artistic, scientific and technological communities, and to engage humanists and social scientists to probe the meaning of the cultural expression and new forms of social organization enabled by the Internet.

Food Security

To improve the food security of the rural poor through the generation of agricultural innovations, institutions and policies that will provide sustainable livelihoods in areas of sub-Saharan Africa and Asia bypassed by the Green Revolution.

Food security—all people having enough food to carry on normal activities at all times—will continue to be a central challenge for millions of households, numerous countries and at least one continent, Africa, over the next half century. Of the 5.1 billion people living in developing countries, 3 billion live in rural areas, most of them dependent on agriculture for their livelihoods. Currently, about 800 million people remain undernourished and roughly 24,000 people die each day from hunger and hunger-related causes.

Most of those who remain undernourished live in regions bypassed by the agricultural advances of the Green Revolution that contributed to dramatic improvements in food security for the majority of the world's people. Living on land that is often lower in natural agricultural potential, having few formal educational opportunities and little access to technology, these farming families, concentrated in sub-Saharan Africa, and less-favored parts of Asia and Latin America, remain in poverty.

To help these farm families move out of poverty, Foundation grantees are generating agricultural innovations, including more dependable and sustainable farming practices, and new crop varieties developed for the specific environmental and socioeconomic conditions under which the poor farm.

Our grantees are engaging the farmers themselves as participants in scientific investigations and in the development of new technologies to meet their needs.

The ability of local organizations to access and move key institutional, policy and technological levers is critical to the success of this process. To foster development of local, national and international policies that will increase the productivity, stability and sustainability of smallholder agriculture, the Foundation seeks to empower and invigorate institutions that provide goods and services to poor farmers.

Food Security's grantmaking falls into four areas:

International Public Goods for Poor Farmers seeks to ensure that national scientists and others working on behalf of small-scale farmers have access to the best knowledge, scientific tools, plant genetic resources and scientific networks available worldwide.

Enhanced Soil Productivity and Improved Crop Varieties draw on these international resources and work in concert to increase farm productivity. The Soils Area of Work uses modern science to assess the nutrient status of soils at the farm level. Innovative farming practices are then used to supply the missing nutrients and increase the yield potential of each field. The Crops Area of Work uses advanced biotechnology, conventional plant breeding and knowledge of on-farm production constraints to develop new crop varieties that are resistant to the pests, diseases and environmental stresses that cause yield losses. Together, enhanced soil fertility and more resilient crop varieties result in increased crop production.

Markets to Raise Incomes of Poor Farmers seeks to build and make more equitable both the input markets that can deliver improved seeds and other new technologies to farmers, and the output markets that enable farmers to convert surplus production into increased profits.

Please see the Foundation's Web site for more information.

Health Equity

Goal: To advance global health equity by pursuing the reduction of avoidable and unfair differences in the health status of populations.

The 20th century generated tremendous technological, economic and social change, of which one result has been a dramatic increase in both life expectancy and quality of life. Yet the majority of these advances have accrued to a very small fraction of humankind. Progress in health has not been equally distributed, either among or within countries.

These disparities in health achievement arise because of a host of factors including, genetic predisposition, crowded living conditions, environmental exposures, food insecurity and inadequate access to health care. While some of these health inequalities may be considered reasonable or unavoidable, others are deemed unjust and therefore inequitable. Making this distinction involves an ethical notion of fairness. There is equity in health when individuals are able to attain their full health potential regardless of age, gender, race or socioeconomic circumstances.

Health-product market failures, crumbling health systems in the wake of health-care reform and a myriad of looming health threats have combined to generate inequities in health that the Foundation is working to address by harnessing the new sciences, resourcing public health and strengthening global leadership.

Since its creation, the Rockefeller Foundation has pursued scientific approaches to global health—from pioneering strategies for disease control and establishing the first schools of public health and tropical medicine, to fostering such new disciplines as molecular biology. The Foundation's grantees' accomplishments are many, including research leading to the discovery of penicillin and the yellow-fever vaccine, for which a staff member won a Nobel Prize.

The Foundation's Health Equity theme envisions a "new health world" whereby poor and excluded people can achieve their full health potential. To help achieve this, the Foundation seeks to counter health-product market failures with advocacy, capacity building and support for specific product initiatives. Much of this work is being done through public/private partnerships, including a new alliance to accelerate tuberculosis drug development and a partnership to speed the development of safe, effective microbicides—substances that can substantially reduce transmission of HIV and other sexually transmitted infections. The importance of partnerships is underscored by the creation and funding, by a broad community of global foundations, of a pilot program in AIDS prevention and care. The program, known as Mother-To-Child Transmission of HIV or MTCT–Plus, builds on the opportunity of preventing HIV transmission from mother to child by extending care to the mothers, thereby increasing the chances of survival for infected mothers and diminishing the incidence of orphanhood.

Health Equity's grantmaking falls into the following areas:

Harnessing the New Sciences aims (a) to accelerate research for products to alleviate suffering from diseases of the poor; (b) to foster greater public- and private-sector responsibility and collaboration in product development; and (c) to ensure that the resulting products are affordable, acceptable and available to the poor in developing countries.

Learning Health Systems: Strengthening systems for human resources for health and designing effective systems of knowledge exchange and translation will help create an environment for "health systems that learn" while solving problems, thereby helping to create more effective and equitable health systems.

Rising to the Challenge of AIDS: Policies and programs that address structural inequities in gender and sexual power dynamics and inequities from marginalization and poverty will lead to more equitable and effective responses to the HIV/AIDS epidemic in sub-Saharan Africa.

Inquiries at:
health@rockfound.org or fax (212) 852-8279, or refer to the Foundation Web site.

Working Communities

Goal: To transform poor urban neighborhoods into working communities—safe, healthy and effective neighborhoods—by increasing the amount and quality of employment, improving the quality of all urban schools, and increasing the influence and voice of the poor and excluded in political decisions that affect their lives.

The mix of productive work, quality education and racial equity makes a working community. Employment provides the material means of support for individuals, structures their daily lives and engenders fulfillment or frustration. Education and training determine access to meaningful employment with advancement potential. Racial equity ensures that all residents have access to the means necessary to achieve stable livelihoods and become full and productive members of the community.

In its effort to make this vision a reality in the United States, the Foundation faces a multitude of challenges. For example:

- Despite sustained U.S. economic growth throughout the 1990s, one in every eight persons remains in poverty.
- Income inequality in the United States is the highest among all industrialized nations, due, in part, to the decline in real wages of low-skilled workers.
- Poverty is primarily an urban phenomenon: three-fourths of the poor live in metropolitan areas, and central U.S. cities are home to half of the nation's poor.
- Poverty weighs more heavily on minorities and non-English speakers—a quarter of all African-Americans and a fifth of Latinos are poor; half of the foreign-born are poor.
- An estimated third of public schools that are failing to teach are in central cities, and teachers continue to report that they are unprepared to teach growing numbers of minority and new English-language learners.

The Foundation supports three areas of activity to improve these conditions: public policies with explicit goals to eliminate or reduce inequities and disparities in education, employment and civic participation; competent public and private organizations to implement and sustain such policies and programs; and detailed practical knowledge and research about which programs work, which do not, and with what costs and benefits.

Partnerships and public/private initiatives will continue to play an important role in addressing the plight of urban neighborhoods. For example, spurred by the foundations that started the National Community Development Initiative (NCDI) and the Ford Foundation—and by such federal policies as the Community Reinvestment Act and the low-income housing tax credit, multibillion-dollar investments were made in housing and community development. With these resources, community development corporations have created hundreds of thousands of units of affordable housing in inner-city neighborhoods.

The Foundation continues support for strategies to improve wages, employment and economic opportunities for the working poor. This includes funding of research and policy analysis, as well as grassroots initiatives to improve employment access and job opportunities for low-skilled urban residents—such as innovative, paid community-service jobs and more effective training and placement services for low-income people. Funding also supports a rigorous experiment aimed at increasing employment rates among public-housing residents.

In 2001, the Foundation completed its partnership with the Comer School Development Program, after a decade of funding that helped it expand to more than 700 schools and train thousands of educators and school administrators nationwide. Broadly, the experience of the school-reform movement and evaluations of Foundation-led initiatives have led to the conclusion that adequate financial resources are critical to any strategies to improve educational outcomes for all children. The Foundation will examine and build models of education-finance reform and accountability that can address current disparities in educational resources and student achievement.

Working Communities supports work in the following areas:

Adequate School Financing: Ensuring adequate financing for urban schools that serve low-income and minority children will necessitate research, model-building, public mobilization and communication investments in grantees in order to impact the way public education is financed and administered at the state level.

Building Mixed Income Communities: New public policies, evidence building and advocacy will be required if we are to expand the production and preservation of affordable housing (particularly for extremely low-income households), increase private-sector investment in low-income neighborhoods and spread the benefits of regional economic development.

Encouraging Economic Resiliency: Improving employment opportunities and working conditions for low-skilled workers will require new employment and workforce policies and practices that result in a more constructive relationship between employers, training providers and government.

CROSS-THEME

Global Inclusion

Goal: To help broaden the benefits and reduce the negative impacts of globalization on vulnerable communities, families and individuals around the world.

In an age of continuous and rapid change, it is essential to the work of the Foundation that we maintain a constant analytical vigil seeking to identify and understand the impacts of global trends, especially those that impact the lives of poor people, before or as soon as they occur. The Foundation's Global Inclusion cross-theme monitors the pace and scale of change in all four of our themes while it also works to build a deeper appreciation of the complexity and diversity of human experience. Global Inclusion supports, promotes and supplements all four of the Foundation's thematic lines of work.

Reaching across boundaries of discipline and experience, Global Inclusion provides analyses of global trends and policy issues, and stimulates and incubates work among the themes that seeks a comprehensive, holistic approach to enriching the lives and livelihoods of poor communities.

By analyzing, interpreting and debating important global trends and issues in poverty and exclusion, ranging from protests against scientific innovations and protection of indigenous rights, to migration restrictions in the face of liberalizing cross-border trade, Global Inclusion helps position the Foundation on a complex array of crosscutting policy and strategic concerns.

At any moment, a discrete issue or a few selected issues affect each of the Foundation's themes and demands an overarching response that acknowledges the interconnected and intertwined themes of people's lives—their health, food, work and creative expression. One example involves the Foundation's commitment to the promotion of science and technology to help enrich the lives of poor people. The cross-theme is engaged in finding an appropriate set of positions in many of the public-policy and scientific debates that emerge from the tension between science and society.

FUNDING GUIDELINES

Global Inclusion makes connections among the four themes, regional offices and special programs, tackling issues that connect the themes and their constituencies and identifying ways to strengthen the linkages between them. It seeks to frame issues and focus public will and resources on critical world issues. Grantmaking is designed to encourage a more open and productive atmosphere in current global debates and to enhance the participation and voice of developing-country actors in policymaking.

Global Inclusion makes grants according to the following lines of work:

Intelligence on Global Trends: To identify and examine new trends and developments that may have an impact on poor and excluded people.

Building Support for Global and Regional Policies to Benefit the Poor: To inform and build consensus around global polices (such as intellectual property and trade and development) that benefit poor people and countries.

REGIONAL PROGRAMS

Africa Regional Program

Goal: To contribute to the revitalization of the African continent by building the required human and institutional capacity and providing critical information that will promote effective policies and programs to improve the lives and livelihoods of the poor.

The Rockefeller Foundation's Africa Regional Program is based on the premise that equitable social and economic development that benefits the majority of Africans requires a new generation of committed leaders who know how to harness the opportunities presented by globalization, social institutions and policies to ensure that benefits accrue directly to the poor and enable an environment for business and social entrepreneurship to flourish.

The program supports the broader work of the Foundation in Africa by strengthening the institutional context in which the themes do their work, and by reinforcing the quantity and quality of human capital on the continent that is available and willing to work for more equitable and sustainable development. It supports the creation of a solid information base for policy analysis and informed decision making in agriculture, education, health and population, and endeavors to enhance the interest of the emerging African private sector in the needs of the poor.

Africa's dual challenge in education is both to provide access to universal primary education of a good quality for a young and growing population and to upgrade its higher-education system. To become skilled in national governance, and users and innovators of sophisticated technology, Africa's daughters and sons require an increase in educational opportunities at all levels. The Foundation's efforts in Higher Education endeavor to strengthen the ability of African universities to contribute to social, economic and political progress in the continent. In Uganda, for example, the Foundation is working with Makerere University to address the human-capacity needs of decentralized governance.

The program supports research that informs and guides policy and practice aimed at addressing the needs of the poor. Democratization and increased accountability of elected leaders is increasing the local demand for evidence-based decision making. The Foundation funds grantees whose work informs policy development, program design and resource allocation by providing local-level, multifaceted information on food, work, health and other human conditions that is needed to understand and address the root causes of poverty. The mapping of poverty in all its dimensions, by piecing together the huge amounts of data collected regularly by statistical offices and other research institutions in Africa, will empower local policymakers to develop a sound understanding of problems and hence to design more realistic solutions.

Recognizing that long-term solutions to the problems of Africa's poor require sustained economic development, which, in turn, requires peace and political stability, democracy, a strong private sector and a host of other critical fundamentals, the Foundation supports enabling partnerships between the key actors in economic development and fosters entrepreneurship and private-sector involvement in social development.

The AIDS pandemic, a profound threat to Africa's stability, has caused severe economic and social dislocation. The program aims to bring indigenous knowledge and traditional social relations to bear on the challenges posed by the pandemic, and complements Health Equity's efforts to stimulate research to enhance sound clinical management of AIDS that is safe, feasible and sustainable. Partnerships are being encouraged between practitioners in the conventional health system and traditional healers who are the only care providers in many remote communities.

FUNDING GUIDELINES

Grantmaking supports work in human capacity building to strengthen the ability of African universities to contribute to social, economic and political progress in the continent and, in primary education, to emphasize literacy as the basis for good quality education with special attention to barriers to girls' full participation.

Research is also funded that informs policy development, program design and resource allocation by providing local-level, multifaceted information on food, health, work and other human conditions that is needed to understand and address the root causes of poverty.

Southeast Asia Regional Program

The Foundation has been developing a regional program focusing on issues in the Greater Mekong Sub-region, an area encompassing the watershed of the Mekong River, including Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, Vietnam and China's Yunnan province.

Uneven economic development and cultural tensions within this ethnically diverse region have given rise to inequities both between and within countries. These inequities have become increasingly articulated as "boundaries" between the peoples of the region. Boundaries include not only conventional geopolitical borders but the very real boundaries of ethnic and gender identity, religion, and health and economic status. Multidisciplinary program activities within the region reflect and respond to the challenges of the area's most marginalized, vulnerable and excluded communities.

Programming is focused on fostering the capacity to think and act across geo-political and identity boundaries through regional exchanges and collaborations that enable people and institutions in the region to respond to emerging trans-boundary trends, capture the benefits and mitigate the negative impacts of regional development on the poor and excluded people in the region.

Programs in cross-border health and Mekong upland communities in transition are aimed at helping to ease the impact of AIDS in marginalized cross-border communities and to explore the impact of rapid development on rural, agrarian societies.

ASSETS & CAPACITIES

Bellagio Study and Conference Center

The Bellagio Study and Conference Center, located on Lake Como, Italy, provides an ideal environment of solitude, contemplation and productivity in which scholars, scientists, artists, writers, policymakers and practitioners from all over the world may pursue their creative and scholarly work.

The Center offers one-month stays for some 150 residents annually in any discipline or field who expect a publication, exhibition, performance or other concrete product to result. The Center also offers interdisciplinary, intercultural networking through the convening of some 55 conferences and small working groups (from three to 25 participants) of policymakers, practitioners, scholars, scientists, artists and others. Priority is accorded to proposals that address significant issues and problems within or across given fields, are innovative in their design, and promise concrete outcomes beyond the drafting of a statement or recommendations.

Applications are reviewed by an interdisciplinary group of Rockefeller Foundation staff and outside specialists. Decisions are based upon the quality of the project proposed, the importance of the proposed work in its field and discipline, the qualifications of the applicant(s), and the suitability of the Center for the proposed activity. The Foundation provides room and board for all residents and working group participants. Some travel assistance is available for those from developing countries who qualify.

Public/Private Partnerships

The Program Venture Experiment (ProVenEx) seeks to catalyze private-sector investments in areas that will benefit poor and excluded people. Through this program the Foundation is testing the hypothesis that philanthropic, market-driven investment tools are capable of earning a return on capital while engaging the private sector in accomplishing program goals, addressing market failures in a financially sustainable manner and achieving greater scale in addressing the needs of poor and excluded people. Through investments in early stage and growing companies, ProVenEx may be able to mend key market failures related to specific program goals such as drugs and vaccines for diseases of the poor, jobs in low-income communities and large-scale distribution of seeds to African farmers.

Application for Extension of Time To File an Exempt Organization Return

▶ File a separate application for each return.

OMB No 1545-1709

- If you are filing for an Automatic 3-Month Extension, complete only Part I and check this box . . . . . ▶ ☑
- If you are filing for an Additional (not automatic) 3-Month Extension, complete only Part II (on page 2 of this form).

Do not complete Part II unless you have already been granted an automatic 3-month extension on a previously filed Form 8868.

Part I Automatic 3-Month Extension of Time—Only submit original (no copies needed)

Form 990-T corporations requesting an automatic 6-month extension—check this box and complete Part I only . . . ▶ ☐

All other corporations (including Form 990-C filers) must use Form 7004 to request an extension of time to file income tax returns. Partnerships, REMICs, and trusts must use Form 8736 to request an extension of time to file Form 1065, 1066, or 1041.

Electronic Filing (e-file). Form 8868 can be filed electronically if you want a 3-month automatic extension of time to file one of the returns noted below (6 months for corporate Form 990-T filers). However, you cannot file it electronically if you want the additional (not automatic) 3-month extension, instead you must submit the fully completed signed page 2 (Part II) of Form 8868. For more details on the electronic filing of this form, visit www.irs.gov/efile.
